"This feeling... The feeling of something still has to be completed. I know that after all I did I have no right for redemption, I saved the 5 doors, yes, but looks at how pricey it was...

My name is Thomas Beoblade. I already had many adventures alongside other God Eaters, either by discovering that it was Fenrir's fault that the Aragamis exist, or saving the world to be destroyed because of five different dimensions.

When I discovered that Fenrir was behind it all, I died, but got resurrected years later by the Fenrir Far East Branch, I worked with top-notch God Eaters on a Unit called Infinite Unit, the most remarkable member was Kaitlin because of her unique style of battling. While fighting against Klaus (a really mysterious person), my Aragami mutation started growing and before I could notice, I was there, building a Fenrir V2.0 to annihilate all Aragamis.

It didn't last long and I had to return with someone called Amy, who most people think it's my adoptive daughter. Been a while and I discovered that the Fenrir V2.0 (called as Resistance) had been destroyed by Axl and Amy died while fighting against one of my old comrades. I discovered that this man was trying to restart the entire existence since The Aragamis are a plague of all Dimensions. I've worked with other God Eaters such as Nikolas, Klaus and Kaitlin. Tough Kaitlin died during the event, our squad have entered in a journey to kill him between dimensions, and soon as I noticed, I was trapped with two choices.

Save everyone who is considered normal, and erase the Vessels (humans who are created by the will of Aragamis, and plays a vital role in all humanity) including myself or just saving people I know but ... an Elder Entity would be inside my mind controlling what I should do. Obviously I decided the second option...

I've been told that I was the king of the Five Doors, by Nikolas and Donovan (my old partner). I discovered months later that it was a lie, and there is no one which plays that role. BUT, when we went to fight on these Doors / Dimensions, a thing called the Black Fang was created by the Doors, and he wanted to erase this "Door" because of me and the other Vessels.

Now, I'm working with other God Eaters to find and terminate the threat. It's just like the Five Doors, we split in two groups, one commanded by me and one by Kaitlin. Now ... How will this little fable end?-

This is my last entry for this journal, maybe I will continue it before the end, maybe not. This was only created to record my achievements to Fenrir and the ones I care about. Don't mind me.
